Daugherty Probe Has Been Choked

Small Chance of Republican Congress Allowing Enquiry Into Morse Case.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Attorney General Daugherty today announced the appointment of former Senator Charles S. Thomas (Dem. Cal.) as a special assistant to prosecute the war fraud cases. He is to begin work June 1 and has first assignment, according to a Department of Justice statement, will be to be formed to decide which cases are to be tried or abandoned.

The selection of George P. Hoover, a Washington lawyer, to double up with Peyton Gordon, of the District Attorney, also is announced, as the assignment of Assistant Attorney General John W. H. Cram to participate in the criminal side of the work.

Ex-Senator Thomas' appointment is regarded as intended to force all any charge of partisan politics in the prosecutions which may involve, according to the Senate debates, two of the Wilson Cabinet.

Meanwhile, the investigation of Mr. Daugherty's own activities seems to be pretty well choked. About the only hope of the Woodruff-Johnson resolution for the investigation of the Department of Justice, which the House passed last week, is to support of the Woodruff resolution, the measure is doomed to oblivion. The "League of Leaders" has found a way to tie it up indefinitely, for the Rules Committee of the House, which is to meet next Thursday, plans to put to sleep the special rule previously adopted to make the resolution in order.

This will be made possible by two Republican—Chairman Campbell of Minnesota—changing their votes. Mr. Campbell plans to move a reconsideration and Mr. Schall is expected to vote with him. This will result in the measure being dropped.

Mr. Schall said he would prefer to see it stay in Mr. Campbell's pocket.

Candidates Must File Tomorrow

City Treasurer Completes Compilation of City Voting List, Largest in City's History.

Candidates for nomination in the Democratic primary on August 2nd are the last day owing to different constructions placed on the Byrd primary law but it is fairly certain that in order to avoid any sort of dispute the papers will be filed tomorrow, that being the last day.

In some quarters there is a question as to whether the papers will be filed tomorrow or the day before. The city Democratic committee realized yesterday's meeting that the definite measure will have to be taken between now and the date of the primary to increase the voting facilities. With the present six voting precincts the judges of election will be swamped and that reason a committee will wait on the council at the next meeting to ask that three additional precincts be made available to take care of the increased vote of the city.

It is likely also that the electoral board which has to appoint the personnel will equip each precinct with a larger corps of tellers in order that the results of the primary may be counted quickly and the results of the primary in Danville made known within a reasonable hour. Unless some such provisions are made, it is believed, the judges will not be able to count the votes until long after midnight.

Efforts being made apparently by persons close to the Westmoreland Davis camp to bring out a candidate against Congressman J. Murray Hooker. Hooker has become so desperate as to elect some little interest here. State Senator Marshall Booker has turned a deaf ear to the proposals and so has Kenneth Whittle of Martinsville, while Dalton Dillard of Rocky Mount, who is a candidate for Congress, has not been tempted to make the race. Col. O. W. Dudley was still being earnestly solicited this morning but it is said to feel that he is now too late to jump into the campaign.

Woman Candidate Making Good Run

Reports received from Caswell county, N. C., where Miss Resue Thompson, of Leesburg, is a candidate for the North Carolina Senate, are that she is carrying on a campaign considered satisfactory to her friends. Miss Thompson is one of two women candidates for the Senate from the North Carolina Senate. The campaign for the Senate seat has been a quiet one with friends of Miss Thompson confident of her success while the supporters of Mr. Wilson claim that the constituency shows signs of not being ready yet to send a woman to the upper legislative branch.

Hannah Case To Grand Jury; McCollough Freed

Following a lengthy hearing in the city court this morning the case against Zeb Hannah, charging him with violating the liquor laws, was sent to the grand jury and a similar warrant against J. C. McCollough, who operates a restaurant on lower Main street, was dismissed.

The charges were brought following a raid on the place last Saturday in which six pint and one quart bottles of whiskey were found in a room back of the restaurant. The room contained a bed and other furniture and Hannah claimed this to be his home. He admitted having no whiskey, which was not over a gallon, and said that McCollough knew nothing of it being there. The restaurant proprietor stated that although he had charge of the place, he had turned the room in question over to Hannah for living quarters. Hannah worked in the restaurant and his wife lived there until recently, when she became ill and went to her mother's home on Floyd street. Officers told of having seen Hannah there often also and the question of whether Hannah was making his mother-in-law's house, resulted in the case being sent to the grand jury for investigation.

C. F. Morrow was fined $50 and costs for driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition.

A fine of $50 and costs was also imposed on G. W. Bryant for operating an auto while intoxicated.

Paul Prather fined $25 for not having proper tags on his automobile. George Abbott fined $6.95 for speeding.

An attorney paid the costs of a warrant for Marie Vaughn, who sent the money to him and asked that warrant against Carl Thacker, charging him with assaulting her to be dismissed. She is said to have reconsidered the matter after taking action against Thacker. Details of the nature of the assault are lacking.

All of the pitchers in the game were hit hard. Errors also figured in the scoring. The box score helps to determine how they did it. It follows:

CONGRESSMAN HOOKER HERE

Congressman J. Murray Hooker arrived in Danville this morning, the House having recessed until the end of the week.

Congressman Hooker stated this morning that there seemed no question about the tariff bill keeping the Senate fully occupied during the entire summer. The passage of the bonus bill in the immediate future is unlikely since it will take its place on the calendar and will not be brought up until the Fordney bill has been disposed of by that body.

(Special to The Bee.)
HIGHT POINT, N. C., May 30.—The Furniture Makers defeated Abbott's Tobacconists here this morning by the score of 6 to 2. Frerick twirled a creditable game, the visitors receiving but a few scattered hits.

Danville made her two runs in the first inning but when they were easily kept away from the scoring station. Schlitz watched four wide ones come across and took first. Baker did the same. States Gamble Is Held In Greensboro For Killing Spry a machine gun. One bullet entered the right chin and came out the left jaw. A second entered the body near the left collar bone and came out on top of the left shoulder. One coming entered from the back, one coming from the left breast and the other two remaining in the body. Any one of the last four would have killed Spry.

He fell unconscious to the sidewalk just at the entrance of the Hudson hotel writing room, blood pouring from his wounds. As the crowd quickly gathered, Mrs. Spry, wife of the dead man, rushed from her writing room to the people, and literally threw herself on her husband's body. Her clothes were drenched with his blood.

The police questioned Gamble and his wife, and gave both had been penalized here for various offenses, including gambling, weapons carrying and disturbance. World Tour Flyers Meet With Mishap MARSEILLES, May 29.—Major W. T. Blake was compelled to make a forced landing at Mareuil, France, today, after a flight from Lyons to Turin, Italy, in the continuation of his attempt to fly around the world.

The machine struck on rough ground, damaging the running gear and smashing the propeller. It is being towed to the Miranville aviation field for repairs, and the flight probably will be delayed for several weeks. Neither Major Blake nor his companions, Browne and MacMillan, were injured.

They left Lyons for Turin at 10:45 o'clock this morning.

Arch Gibson, who also was hurt, remains in the hospital, but is not expected that he will recover.

C., who are coming through Piedmont, Virginia, on a tour of inspection. There will be 125 of them in all, accompanied by singers and a good sized band. They are due to arrive here at six o'clock on special pullmans, and, after supper at one of the local hotels there will be a meeting in the auditorium where business men of the Danville Chamber of Commerce will meet with them. Most of those coming are described as textile executives. With them will be Dr. Daniel of Clemson College, well remembered here as a speaker at one of the annual meetings of the Chamber of Commerce several years ago.

Girl, 15, May Have Eloped With Youth from Tampa

RICHMOND, Va., May 29.—Fear that their 15-year-old daughter, Thelma, has eloped with a young man from Tampa, Fla., was voiced today by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coffin of Richmond, who stopped over in Richmond last week to witness the Virginia historical pageant. They were motoring home from Lakeland, Fla., where they had spent the winter and early spring.

The girl disappeared Thursday evening, leaving a note addressed to her mother saying: "We will notify you as soon as we are located." The note added that "we are going North."

Mrs. Coffin said today that a young Thelma had been attentive to Thelma for several months and wanted to marry her, but she and Mr. Coffin objected on the ground that the girl was too young.

Another Thelma advanced is that the girl may have gone to the home of her grandfather, Halsey Mould, at Big Rapids, Mich.

Three Held For U. S. Grand Jury

J. G. Fisher, G. D. Kasey and S. W. Packerell, who were recently apprehended in Henry county in connection with a 250-gallon still, were sent on to the United States grand jury at Martinsville yesterday following a hearing before U. S. Commissioner George H. Marshall at that place. Packerell's bond was set at $300 and the other two men $500 each. The case was kept confidential and the defense made efforts, it is said, to show that the still and 4,000 gallons of mash found at it were the property of S. I. Ransome, who was recently convicted in Halifax county of carrying on a still and was sentenced to the Federal Reformatory for Prisoners at Leavenworth, Kan. Federal Officer Chamberlain was the principal government witness in the cases.

Her return is supposed to be due to guardianship proceedings in which her mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, intervened yesterday.

Exaggeration, Economic Quackery, Alien Menace, Seen by Dr. Van Dyke at Princeton.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Characterizing the present day as a "nervous age," Dr. H. Van Dyke, in a sermon delivered at Princeton University Chapel yesterday morning, said it seemed impossible for a sane view of the world to exist.

"It is an age of exaggeration," he said. "There is too great a tendency on the part of some toward superstition. The reverse side of this false coin is the scepticism toward which the other part tends."

One reason for the nervousness, according to Dr. Van Dyke, is national indigestion.

"We have too much undigested immigration," he said. "I would denounce any alien who has been in this country for ten years and is not able to read and write English as undesirable. The world is suffering from political, economic and social quackery."

With a few mild reservations, we are perfectly satisfied with the doctrine of Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Roosevelt and Wilson, and are not going to give them up for the ideas of Lenin and Trotsky," he said. These ideas are being brought in by thousands of immigrants.

Another fear of the present day, on the part of some, is that science is going to destroy belief in religion, the preacher pointed out. He said the same attitude existed when Copernicus said the earth revolved around the sun. A popular but entirely untrue statement. These points, well-known exaggerations, in going on to say that the world might be reconquered by the Hun.

Orphans Of Storm Griffith Triumph

A typical Griffith production—mammoth, thrilling, colorful and marked by the acme of artistry and fidelity to history—was presented at the Majestic last night to an audience which, though enthusiastic, was not so great as the magnitude and the merits of the picture would seem to justify and assure. For his theme, Mr. Griffith had gone back to an old story classic, the tale of the "Orphans of the Storm," his adaptation of which was made possible by arrangement with Kate Claxton, who herself won fame in this stirring melodrama, other before most of last night's audience were born. It is the highest tribute to the art of the producer that he can thus take up and revive such a magnificent scale, an old, old story which many of us had seen more than a score of times in the second-rate stock companies more than 25 years ago.

The pictorialization of the play transcends in scope, grandeur and magnificence the stage presentation of the play before the audience was even dreamed of making it greater even than when the genius of Claxton and of the author of the play stirred great audiences. It was like meeting an old friend, but under more impressive conditions than the stage. There are all there in the stirring action of the piece, only they are costumed in the garb of fashion or the rattle of the Directorate period, as the characters require. There are Henriette, the beautiful orphan, who used to appeal to us so; the brutal Jacques and the crippled knife-grinder, Pierre, whose drab, persecuted existence is illumined by the miracle of love, and there are the other characters, the old Mere Frochard, the hag whose very impersonation has made even name odious. It may be of interest to note, too, that the Frochard role was given an admirable interpretation in the picture by the actress, the late Mrs. Lillian Gish, who was widely known in this State for her impersonation of old woman characters in stock company in Richmond and elsewhere in road companies on the stage. To any one who knew her, she was easily recognizable last night in the picture, even in the splendid make-up of the part of La Frochard.

But the producer has essayed something far more ambitious than a mere revival of "Two Orphans." He has found in the old drama ample scope for his genius in staging, costuming and the thrilling staging of spectacles amazing in their magnitude. He has portrayed history—and the history of one of the grandest and most dramatic scenes in the history of the world—with a sumptuousness and magnificence and a drab and horrible portrait of the Paris canaille of the French Revolution. The genesis of the Revolution in the vulgar display of the nobility their cruelties and their immorality and their cruel injustices to the lower classes are all depicted vividly. The artist has given a faithful historical portrait of Danton and Robespierre and less refined brutes who made the French Revolution a reign of bloodshed and brutal bestiality that for the time being converted the milk of human kindness in virulent poison. No one familiar with that period can doubt that the producer has diligently studied the history of that period and has reproduced in costumes and in action that revolting succession of scenes of human madness and vengeance. The grim outlines and its deadly mechanism, the heaving masses of the sans culottes and the merciless madwomen, unsexed in that awful time, and even the wild, abandoned carousal of the Carmagnole—all these are depicted as though they had been seen by the artist himself.

"Orphans of the Storm" is more than a melodrama. It is a magnificent lesson in history taught in series of pictures in the making of which vast study and effort and enormous expense have been involved. It is well worth being seen by all, and the opportunity to see the Danville patrons of the drama today.

MISS ROBINSON, OF SALISBURY, DIES

Miss Gwendolyn Robinson, 26 years of age, of Salisbury, N. C., a graduate nurse of General Hospital, died at General Hospital last evening at 5:20 o'clock following an illness of two weeks of heart trouble. Miss Robinson had returned to Danville three weeks ago to visit at the home of J. H. Robinson, left at the hospital, and became ill shortly after her arrival. She was taken to General Hospital where every care and attention was given her, but to no avail, as she died last evening.

THE HOLY GRAIL

By Oscar Williams
I have seen beauty wander by my window-pane,
Her drapery, the rustling rain,
She lures the hills down sunset,
Lurking through dawn,
And I too, follow, follow on.
I follow on, and never see the hands
Of a thief,
But they catch at her drapery.
All things seek her, and never
At midnight leave at the sight of A thief.

No other method of making the nomination was discussed, and it was set for August 1st, or the same date on which the Democrats throughout the State will vote on their choice for United States senator.

WARD BELIEVED TO HAVE USED ANOTHER CAR

NEW YORK, May 22.—Belief that Walter S. Ward, wealthy baker and self confessed slayer two weeks ago of Clarence Peters, may have used another automobile than his own coupe that night, was offered tonight as having important bearing on the case.

Police are looking for an automobile dealer who, they believe can shed light on this development. It was suggested that discovery of a second car might reveal bloodstains which would disprove Ward's statement that Peters had stepped from the coupe with a pistol leveled at him and that he was standing at the roadside when Ward shot him.

TYPHOID FEVER

Danville's experience with Typhoid Fever last year was most costly. Out of this experience certain valuable lessons have come. The people cannot afford to lose sight of these lessons or fail to profit by them. Provisions for safeguarding the milk supply was a logical result of last year's milk borne outbreak. These measures are being put into operation as rapidly as it is practicable and the standards of our milk supply are being made higher all along the line. It is gratifying to note that most of the milk producers are co-operating in these efforts and are themselves recognizing the fairness and justice of the requirements made by the city for the protection of the health and lives of its citizens.

FRANCE MAY STAY AWAY FROM THE HAGUE MEETING

PARIS, May 22.—(By The Associated Press)—Premier Poincare, it is said, will recommend to the Chamber of Deputies that France abstain from participation in the conference at The Hague of Russian affairs unless it is well established in advance that the conference is to discuss the economic subjects alone, and that the discussion will take place between experts, as distinguished from diplomats.

"Human Touch" Theme Of Dr. Cousins Here

The closing exercises of commencement at Averett College were witnessed by a large audience last evening. Dr. J. H. Cousins, who held the attention of the audience in a scholarly and eloquent address for half an hour. His theme was the "Human Touch," which he characterized as the greatest influence in bringing the human touch into the modern world. He characterized the former president's words as the greatest since modern civilization heard and began to follow the teachings of the lowly Galilean. It is not altogether the form or mould into which the modern art is cast, but it is the certitude given these forms by the human touch. Ideas are ghosts until they are incarnated, transfigured and made human. Our educational systems have failed in that they have not made human. Our industries have taken on new life since the employees have felt the universal brotherhood among men as introduced by Henry Ford.

CHICAGO LABOR LEADERS WILL FULFILL PLEDGE

CHICAGO, May 22.—Fred "French" Mader, president of the building trades council, and Timothy "Big Tim" Murphy, known as a "labor czar" today agreed to sever all connection with the building trades.

HARDING SEES ARMY BEATEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., 22.—President Harding interrupted his Chesapeake Bay week-end cruise on the Mayflower today by stopping off at the naval academy and watching the "middy" ball team trounce its traditional opponents from West Point by a score of 8 to 7. The Mayflower steamed up Annapolis roadstead in the morning, taking the president's 21-gun salute from the turrets of three battleships of the Atlantic fleet which were in harbor and putting the president ashore in the midst of a surprised commencement crowd.

ATLANTA CELEBRATES WITH MANY FLOATS AND A BIG PARADE

ATLANTA, Ga., May 22.—The "progress and prosperity" week celebration was opened here tonight with a parade of decorated floats through the downtown streets and a ball at Lakewood Park at which Forrest Adair, a local real estate man was Marion Stearns, a society girl queen.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Notice that his proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit child labor would be pressed was given in a statement issued today by Senator Johnson, Republican, California. COURT REFUSES TO RENEW CASE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Refusal to renew the conviction of James H. Alderman, Alfonso J. Alderman, Lefty Montgomery, Nick Santini, Godfrey Santini and Walter Scott in the United States district court for Northern District of California, was announced today by the circuit court, by appeals for the fifth circuit notwithstanding their contention that the indictment upon which they were tried was defective.

Col. O. W. Dudley Is Being Urged To Oppose Hooker

It became known yesterday evening that Col. O. W. Dudley is being earnestly solicited by various groups of Danville to become a candidate for Congress from the Fifth Congressional District against J. Murray Hooker. When Col. Dudley was asked yesterday evening if he would not be a candidate, he stated that he had been approached by a number of people both in person and by telephone, urging him to give serious consideration to allowing his name to be used and to become a candidate.

From what can be learned of these efforts they had their inception in the city of Danville and they do not appear to be coming from the Fifth District generally. Col. Dudley intimated that he would not be a candidate, but his friends are declining to accept this reply and they are continuing their efforts to bring him out.

Col. Dudley is one of Danville's best known residents having "grown up with the town" as one man put it yesterday. He is a native of Highland county and is esteemed and highly regarded by all who know him.

The war claims board, which went out of existence in Washington March 1, settled more than 32,000 claims.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Itched and Burned. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My skin became rough and red, pimples broke out all over my face. The pimples were hard and scaled over, and itched and burned so that I could not sleep at night. My face was badly disfigured. I tried many remedies but could not get relief. Seeing an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment I sent for a free sample which helped me so I purchased more, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." TUESDAY, MAY 30, 1922.

Scoop's Colyum
DRAKES BRANCH, May 30.— (Grapevine Wireles)—Today is "Decoration Day," a national holiday generally observed throughout the land. After the war between the States, the day was set aside by act of Congress to commemorate the deeds and services of the soldiers of the Republic, who had fought the wars from the earliest conflict with England through the internal struggle between the North and the South. Since those trying times the wounds have healed and the bitterness has passed. As one people, we have passed the humbled proud Spain and have Cuba her independence. No country responded more readily than the South which furnished many distinguished soldiers and sailors, and victory was soon won. The old Confederate General, Joe Wheeler, and Colonel Roosevelt fought side by side, and Schley shared the honors at Santiago. Then came the world war, and again our country, united in strength and high purpose, marched forth to victory and made the world safe for democracy. We must put aside provincialism and through we will cherish the memories of our fathers. It behooves us to grasp the real meaning of citizenship in the largest sense, and take our place in honoring the memory of our soldier dead, whether they come out of the North, the South, the East or the West.
The observance of the day should not be left to school children alone, but the entire community should unite in a suitable program in keeping with the spirit and purpose of "Decoration Day."
Talbot and Marshall are still running as The Bee goes to press.

"If you're content," he mumbled
... "dare say there's nothing more to be said."
She nodded gaily, repeating the word, "Nothing," in a flute-like note of mirth. Hanging his head, he began wretchedly to stuff the plunder into his pockets, muttering half to himself: "What a pity! If only I could have had a bit of luck! If only we could have hit it off!"
"If you hurry," she reminded him,
"you can catch the night train for San Francisco, you can just about make it."
"Well..." He glanced un-happily at her, and again was conscious of the heat in his cheeks. "So it comes to this at last..." He ... "goodbye!"
"Goodbye," she repeated, amiably casual.
"Dare say..." He gave a dubious chuckle. "Dare say it's a bit of luck, well, the usual thing, you know..."
"Usual thing?" she parroted, with faintly knitting brows.
"To kiss goodbye."
"You'll miss your train."
He developed a moment of desperately sincere emotion: "Fanny!
you've been a perfect brick to me, a perfect brick. I feel like a dog, leaving you like this."
"Oh!" she said, as one indulges a persistent child. "If you really want to kiss me, Harry, go ahead." Nevertheless she turned her mouth aside, his lips brushed only her powdered cheek. Then she stepped back to her mirror and with a puff made good the imperceptible damage done by the caress. The glass showed Lorraine's shadow sinking out. She heard him blunder through the living-room, the slam of the screen door. And her hand fumbled, the powder-puff dropped unheeded, mis-drifted across her vision, she gasped a breathless "Damn!" Tears meant a wrecked make-up.
Though there was need enough for haste if he were to carry out the plan she made for him, Lorraine dragged slowly down the walk, with a hand-grip air, the hands in his pockets fingering the price of the last sorry shreds of his self-respect.
In the darkness the flesh of his face still burned with fire of shame...
Beside the car he halted and rested with a hand on the door for so long a time that the chauffeur grew inquisitive.
"When to Mr. Lorraine?"
"When to God!" Lorraine blurted into the man's astonished face, and whirling about, strode hastily back to the bungalow.
As he drew near he could hear Fanny's voice. She was at the telephone in the living-room, calling a number he didn't catch; Summerlad's no doubt.
"Hello? Is it you, dear? Fanny?"
"First chance I've had... Poor darling! I've been aching to see you all day and tell you how I sym-pathized... Yes, as you like, you won't mind, as I mean, I'm all alone. Besides, we had a little talk tonight, came to an understanding. He won't be in our way after this ever again, Barry dear..." Something amused her, peals of musical laughter haunted Lorraine down the walk. "Union Pacific Station?" he cried, throwing himself into the car. "Drive like hell!"
XXX
THAT sunset whose reluctant waning Lorraine was presently to watch from the bungalow veranda was still a glory in the sky when Lucinda motored to Beverly Hills.
It seemed a churlish chance finding that ordained a reception for her exclusively at the hands of a semi-intelligent Jap, who uttered assorted fragments of English to the why didn't you ever tell me you were married?"

Summerlad said "Damnation!" half under his breath and moved nearer, till another flutter of her hand stopped him. "That wife husband of yours?" he exploded then, vindictively. "I suppose he's been spilling all he knows."
"Did he know?" Yes, I presume he must have. But you're mistaken, he didn't tell me. It was this..."
Summerlad frowned, at a loss to identify the volume in her extended hand.
"I found P. Lynn, quite by accident, while I was waiting. Hope's Indian Love Lyrics. Don't you remember?"... So, it's inscribed:
"To my Lynn, on the first anniversary of our marriage, with all my heart, Nelly." And then this picture of you two, published after you came here to live... Oh! Lynn! Why did you lie to me about that poor girl?"
For a moment Summerlad gnawed his underlip without attempting to reply. Then with a sign of despair he retreated to one end of the club-lounge, against which he rested, to ease his foot. He said something in an angry murmur, as Lucinda followed into the room.
"I thought I could keep it from you until..."
"Till when? Till what?" He growled, inarticulate with vexation.
"To let me go on thinking..."
making such a fool of myself...
Since you don't live together, why aren't you divorced?"
"Nelly said if I tried to divorce her she'd fight back, and she knows..." He didn't finish, but shut his teeth on a blundering tongue and looked more than ever guilty. But Lucinda was in a pitiless temper.
"About you? You mean—about you and other women?"
"Hang it all! I've never pretended to be a saint, have I, Linda?"
"No wonder the poor thing hated the sight of me!... Oh, how could you have been so unkind!"
"If you'd only give me a show to explain..."
Her lip curled: "Explain?"
"I've been doing my best." Sum-merlad argued resentfully. "When I saw how it was going to be with you and me, and found out Nelly'd come back to Hollywood, I went to her and had things out—gave her some money and promised her more, on the strength of her promise to go back home and get a divorce on the spot."
"And did you hope to keep that a secret from me?"
"My name isn't Summerlad, any more than her's is Marquis de Sade."
"I thought it was." I thought everything was going to be all right till she turned up again with your officious husband."
"You think he had something to do..."
"He wanted Nelly on the spot as a sort of club over my head. He hasn't given you up yet!"—Summerlad laughed shortly—"not by a long light."
"A club over your head? I don't understand."
"Not meaning to use it so long as we behaved ourselves."
"Behaved ourselves?" "Lynn?"
"Oh, forgive me! I didn't mean to say that."
Summerlad's look mirrored a real and poignant contrition as he saw her coloring with affronted sensibility, drawing back from him, momentarily slipping farther beyond his reach. "Linda," he implored—"don't look at me that way."
Suddenly, before she could stir to escape, he caught her to him and held her fast.
"Linda, sweetheart! don't be angry with me. I've tried so hard to be good enough for you. And you —you've loved me, too! Don't let this rotten accident spoil everything for us. If you love me—and you know I love you—what does anything matter? What if we are both married? What difference need that make? Love can still be sweet..."
She made no show of opposition, only drew back her head to cheat his lips; but when she tried to brave his eyes, thinking to read therein recognition of the hunger that informed them, hunger that she won-deringly had whetted, hunger such as she herself had too often known of late, like warm wine running in one's veins...

TODDLE IF YOU MUST; SHIMMY AT YOUR PERIL! SAYS MARIE

ACQUITTAL OF WILLIAM BLIZZARD
The acquittal of William Blizard at Charles Town, West Virginia, of a charge of treason after a trial lasting for five weeks, has brought to a close an interesting case and a somewhat rare example of court litigation. Trial for treason in times of peace in this country bears a foreign meaning. During the recent war we all sensed the danger of the crime and realized the necessity of dealing expeditiously with persons who plotted against the welfare of this country. But in the Blizard case it seemed at most a far-fetched theory. Treason belongs rather to the medieval age when heads were lopped off at short notice for even constructive criticism of kingly reigns or the policies of queens and princes.

Even if William Blizard did take part in the armed march on Logan county a year or more ago it would have hardly brought it within the range of a conspiracy against the State. As a matter of fact there was an extreme doubt if Blizard did take part in the expedition of the united mine workers. The individual was not the main aim of the prosecution. It was the organization which possibly sought to cower the ranks of the non-union workers that was the real object of attack. It is quite possible that if the State of West Virginia had proffered a lesser crime against Blizard and the co-defendants that a case might have been made out and a penalty inflicted which would have deterred a repetition of the act in the future. In Blizard's case, however, there was no evidence to support the major charge and it is not surprising that the jury lost little time in announcing its refusal to believe that he accused man had any ulterior designs against the peace and dignity of the State.

CHICAGO, May 30.—"Craw!" or
"toddle!" or "rattle!" all you please, girls. But if you value your peace of mind avoid the rhythmic quiverings of the "shimmy!"
That is the warning word of Marie Ehlers.
Marie is the "shimmy queen" of Chicago. Her rendition of "the Nauch dance" has put her name in electric lights.
"I hate to talk like a reformer,"
she said today, explaining her warning, "but for once the reformers are right. The 'shimmy' is deadlier than moonshine."
Just then a nearby jazz orchestra
broke into a frenzied, intoxicating pliancy that penetrated the room. Involuntarily Marie's pretty shoulders began to twitch; then her feet began shuffling.
"You see?" she said plaintively. "I just can't help myself. Whenever the music starts, my body begins dancing. I'm helpless, absolutely helpless!"
"And it isn't music only. A street car going or an automobile horn may start me going. You've no idea how embarrassing it is."
The doctors trying to cure Miss Eh-
lers of "shimmyitis" call the disease diathrochsis, an affection of the joints so much they are now beyond
her control.
Any sound suggestive of jazz or
orchestra—and what sound is not?—sets
the joints going.
The doctors have ordered her to keep out of earshot of all jazz. But to get away from jazz, money is needed. So Marie is suing her employer for $10,000 damages. She says he taught her to dance the "shimmy."
Therefore, she reasons, he ought to pay for the cure.

The acquittal of William Blizard at Charles Town, West Virginia, of a charge of treason after a trial lasting for five weeks, has brought to a close an interesting case and a somewhat rare example of court litigation. Trial for treason in times of peace in this country bears a foreign meaning. During the recent war we all sensed the danger of the crime and realized the necessity of dealing expeditiously with persons who plotted against the welfare of this country. But in the Blizard case it seemed at most a far-fetched theory. Treason belongs rather to the medieval age when heads were lopped off at short notice for even constructive criticism of kingly reigns or the policies of queens and princes.

Even if William Blizard did take part in the armed march on Logan county a year or more ago it would have hardly brought it within the range of a conspiracy against the State. As a matter of fact there was an extreme doubt if Blizard did take part in the expedition of the united mine workers. The individual was not the main aim of the prosecution. It was the organization which possibly sought to cower the ranks of the non-union workers that was the real object of attack. It is quite possible that if the State of West Virginia had proffered a lesser crime against Blizard and the co-defendants that a case might have been made out and a penalty inflicted which would have deterred a repetition of the act in the future. In Blizard's case, however, there was no evidence to support the major charge and it is not surprising that the jury lost little time in announcing its refusal to believe that he accused man had any ulterior designs against the peace and dignity of the State.

session of this last: Lynn would have Laurence Hope!... Evidently a gift copy. When she opened the book at its fly-leaf, a slip of printed paper fluttered out. Without pausing to read the inscription, Lucinda retrieved the clipping: a half-tone from one of the motion-picture monthlies, a view of the bungalow grounds, with the house in the distance, and in the foreground Lynn and a young woman arm-in-arm, laughing at the camera...
The evening had grown quite dark when a crisp rattle of the telephone startled Lucinda into renewed contact with her surroundings. The book was in her hand. Behind her door opened. Without moving she watched Summerlad, in a dressing-gown hastily thrown on over dress-shirt and trousers, hobble over to the telephone and conduct one end of a short conversation of which her wits made no sense whatever. He hung up, and peered blindly round the room.
"Linda, darling?" he called.
"What's the big idea, sitting all alone in the dark?" At the same time he switched on wall-sconces and, blinking, saw her. "Just our luck!" he grumbled, trying to sound disconsolate. "What do you think, sweetheart? Fanny says they can't come tonight; Harry's laid up, got a sick headache or something, and she doesn't think she ought to leave him I wonder if you'd mind dining here with me alone, this once. I can't very well go out with this foot. Eh?
What do you think?"
Lucinda made no sound. His eyes narrowed as he perceived the abnormal absence of color in her face, the dark dilation of her unwavering eyes. Limping, he approached.
"What's the matter, Linda? Not cross with me, are you?"
An entreating hand silenced him.
All in a breath Lucinda said: "Lynn."

CHICAGO, May 30.—"Craw!" or
"toddle!" or "rattle!" all you
please, girls. But if you value your
peace of mind avoid the rhythmic
quiverings of the "shimmy!"
That is the warning word of Marie
Ehlers.
Marie is the "shimmy queen" of Chicago. Her rendition of "the Nauch dance" has put her name in
electric lights.
"I hate to talk like a reformer,"
she said today, explaining her warning, "but for once the reformers are right. The 'shimmy' is deadlier than moonshine."
Just then a nearby jazz orchestra
broke into a frenzied, intoxicating
pliancy that penetrated the room. Involuntarily Marie's pretty shoulders
began to twitch; then her feet began
shuffling.
"You see?" she said plaintively. "I just can't help myself. Whenever
the music starts, my body begins
dancing. I'm helpless, absolutely
helpless!"
"And it isn't music only. A street car going or an automobile horn may start me going. You've no idea how embarrassing it is."
The doctors trying to cure Miss Eh-
lers of "shimmyitis" call the disease
diathrochsis, an affection of the
joints so much they are now beyond
her control.
Any sound suggestive of jazz or
orchestra—and what sound is not?—sets
the joints going.
The doctors have ordered her to keep out of earshot of all jazz. But
to get away from jazz, money is need-
ed. So Marie is suing her employer
for $10,000 damages. She says he taught her to dance the "shimmy."
Therefore, she reasons, he ought to
pay for the cure.

A STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

In connection with my announcement as a candidate for the office of Superintendent of Water, Gas, and Electric Light Departments, and in reply to a number of inquiries, wish to state that I am absolutely in favor of maintaining these departments as a Municipal enterprise.

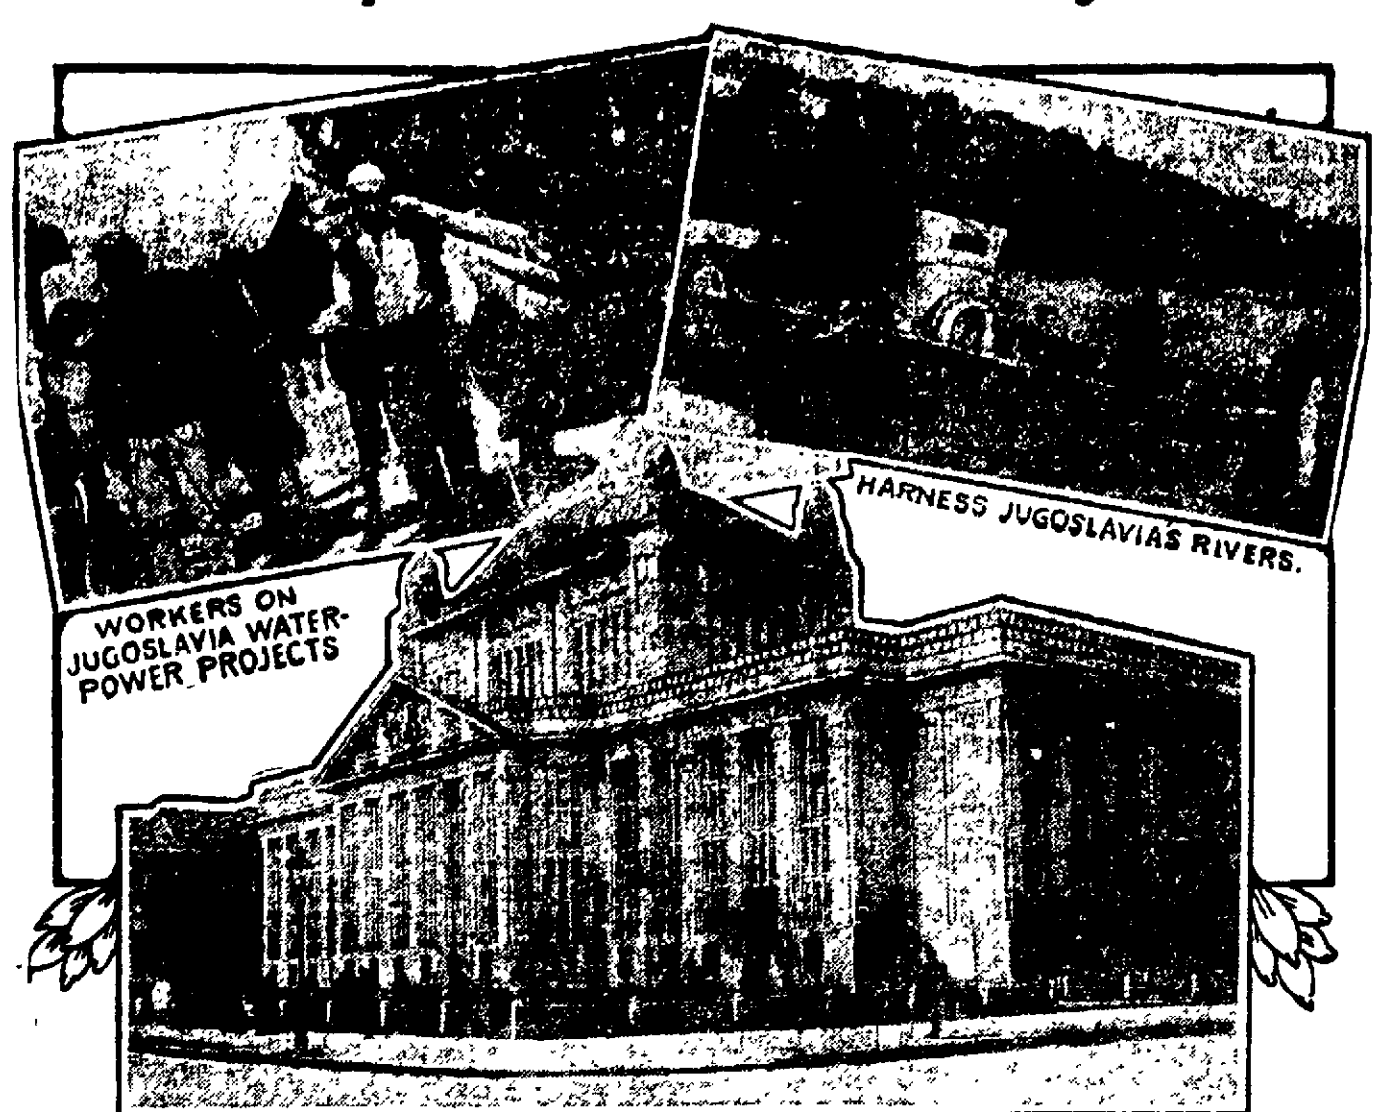

Would also like to say that it would be my idea to endeavor to have the price to the consumers of gas and electric lights reduced in keeping with the reduced costs of labor and materials. As the price of most other necessities has been reduced during the past year or more, it is believed that a corresponding reduction in these costs should be made.

Jugo-Slavia Reports Increasing Construction and Waterpower Improvements As Industry Thrives

With all the spirit of a New World country, instead of a new country in the Old World, Jugo-Slavia is taking steps to make every use of her hydro-electric possibilities, the program calling eventually for the electrification of the entire country.

Plans for two of the first of these projects have been completed. Near Modrich, the Bosnia River will be harnessed and made to operate a plant furnishing 8,000 horsepower. Also in the Modrich district there will be another power plant on the Drina River which will develop 22,000 horsepower. With these developments, the power is to be transmitted over a large area, and will be used to the greatest possible extent in helping to exploit the tremendous natural wealth lying latent on the surface and beneath it.

Building operations have already been begun on an electric plant on the West Morava River, which will not only furnish light and power to the city of Tehtachak, but which will transmit electricity to several adjacent towns and villages. Along with this development, the local Serbian syndicate which is building this plant, has completed surveys for an electric interurban line connecting Uzice and Ivrnjica with surrounding towns. This will be the first interurban electric line in Jugo-Slavia.

Railroad Merger Dissolved In Court

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Dissolution of ownership and control of the Central Pacific railway by the Southern Pacific Company was ordered today by the Supreme Court in an opinion delivered by Justice Day. The decision in the case, which was the last of the railroad merger suits to be brought before the court, held that the two lines were competitors.

Justice McKenna's dissenting opinion delivered a short dissent. The court directed that a decree be entered severing the control by the Southern Pacific of the Central Pacific by stock ownership or by lease but in accomplishing that end so far as compatible, said the mortgage lien of the Union Trust Company of New York should be protected.

The several terminal lines and cut-offs leading to San Francisco Bay which have been constructed or acquired during the unified control of the two systems for connection to the bay and to the principal terminal facilities about the bay should be dealt with, the court declared, "either by way of apportionment or by provisions for joint use."

Members of sister Lodges asked to attend. By order of: E. N. OAKES, W. M. JACOB SILVERMAN, Sec'y.

United States asserted the lines of the two railroads constituted competitive systems and asked that the ownership, acquired by the Southern Pacific of a controlling interest in the Central Pacific be declared unlawful.

A minute review of the history of the two railroads was given by Justice Day leading up to what he termed "the outstanding fact" of the physical operation of the two railroads.

"The Central Pacific with its eastern connection at Ogden forms one great system of transportation, between the East and the West," the opinion stated. "The Southern Pacific with its coast and connection and steamboat lines form another great transcontinental system for transportation from coast to coast."

The acquisition of the Central Pacific stock by the Southern Pacific was held to be unlawful under the opinion of the court in the Union Pacific case "unless justified by the special circumstances relied upon for that purpose, but the court after analyzing the special circumstances, decided them as not justifying the control."

The present case did not differ from the Union Pacific case at all in principle, Justice Day asserted, the only difference being that in the Central Pacific the Southern Pacific acquired a competitive system of 800 miles in length, whereas in the Union Pacific the competitive system absorbed was 1,000 miles in length.

Reviewing previous railroad merger decisions, Justice Day asserted the court had "collectively established" in those that one system of railroad transportation cannot acquire another, nor a substantial and vital part thereof with the effect of such acquisition is to suppress, or materially reduce the free and normal flow of competition in the channels of interstate trade.

INSANITY PLEA IS LIKELY IN DELMORE MURDER

REV. ADELARD DELORME

MONTREAL, May 30.—Insanity probably will be the defense of Rev. Adelard Delorme when he goes to trial in June on the charge of murdering his foster brother, Raoul Delorme.

He has been intimidated by Gustav Monnet and Ephraim Filion, attorneys for the Roman Catholic priest, accused in a crime that for a time created one of the most puzzling murder mysteries ever known in Canada.

Rev. Delorme entered a plea of not guilty, but his lawyers maintain that he has been in such a mental daze since his arrest that he has not understood a word of the proceedings in his case. It is possible that the crown may appoint a lunacy commission at the last moment.

The body of Raoul Delorme, a wealthy young student at Ottawa University, was found in the snow Jan. 7. A cloth, frozen stiff, was tightly twisted around his neck, and there were six bullet wounds in it.

Rev. Delorme offered $10,000 for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

At the inquest Jan. 17 it was brought out that Rev. Delorme was the sole administrator of the boy's estate, and that in their father's will Raoul had received a considerable sum; he was the owner of 20 houses, and his foster-brother collected rents for him.

Rev. Delorme stated he carried a revolver in his car, for protection against thieves. Police found this revolver and on it is of the same calibre as the pistol from which the fatal shots were fired.

Separational evidence was brought out that just seven days before the murder a $25,000 life insurance policy which Raoul took out at the suggestion of Rev. Delorme was delivered.

Detectives said they found bloodstains on the robe in the priest's car. Later the murdered boy's will was found in the possession of a notary.

Practically the whole of the estate was left to the priest, and it was pointed out by police that Rev. Delorme had been present in Ottawa when about a substantial and vital part thereof with the effect of such acquisition is to suppress, or materially reduce the free and normal flow of competition in the channels of interstate trade.

Rev. Delorme, a retired cure, broke down and wept as he was taken to prison to await trial.

Bootleggers Using Costly Motor Cars

NEW YORK, May 29.—Around the corner of Mulberry street at Kenmare, yesterday morning, its horn ordering out of its path children, push-carts and other Mulberry street habitués, came a large new touring car. Its occupants were seven young men, all typical of the lower east side. As the car bore its way through the traffic its passengers now and then waving to an acquaintance, a detective who had been looking up some old cases in the neighborhood saw them. He turned to watch the big car as it swung around the corner and disappeared in Grand street.

A few minutes later, back at headquarters, the detective said to one of his colleagues: "I saw a gang of bootleggers in a new twin-six on Mulberry this morning—strangers they were to me. We'll be having another gang fight and more innocent bystanders killed in a couple of days."

"How do you know they were bootleggers, and if they were, why didn't you stop and search them?" the detective was asked.

"I wouldn't have found a gun on one of them if they are up to some deviltry their 'carrier' is either ahead of them or hiding in the neighborhood with a bag full of guns. A search of the car would have disclosed no bottled goods either, and if I had picked them up as bootleggers without evidence my reward would have been a 'call' from some Magistrate for a false arrest, if nothing worse."

"I have stopped and searched dozens of such cars. I have found the owner at the wheel with papers to prove his ownership and license all O. K. How do I know they were bootleggers? 'Blue shirts' and twin-sixes don't go together in any other trade. Did any of those chaps look as if they 'earned' enough to run a $5,000 car? Didn't you see the country road mud on its wheels and the wear those tires showed?"

"Take a walk down through the lower east side and count the number of fancy cars you see, most of them new and all of them showing signs of long fast trips. Between here and the Bowery and Kenmare and Madison streets you'll see fifty cars and not one of the cost less than $2,000."

Last week six people were shot in a gang battle in Grand street. The police called it a "bootleg" affair. A few months ago the body of a man was found tied up in sacks in a vacant lot near 17th street in the Bronx. The police found he was reported to have made a lot of money in some mysterious manner. They detected a promise that a certain notorious character they were unable to connect with the murder would be killed later. He was shot to death in Kenmare street within two months of the vacant lot murder. Three weeks ago in a restaurant in East Twelfth street, "Tony" Sacculi was killed by a former friend. Detectives said it was another bootleg murder.

"For the murders in New York," one detective said, "the law is not I believe that thirty-five or forty have been over the division of profits in bootlegging. Generally the man who is shot is reputed to have left a lot of money. He is a boss bootlegger."

Star Screen Players Portray Characters Seen Everywhere in Real Life.

"Hail the Woman," the pictureization of a real life lived by a hundred million Americans throughout this broad continent, and the greatest achievement of Thomas H. Ince, pioneer motion picture producer, will be shown at the Broadway Theatre Thursday and Friday.

Written by C. Gardner Sullivan, master screen dramatist, it is his deepest human document.

Florence Vidor takes the leading role, that of Judith Beresford. It is that of a high-minded, sensitive daughter of the New England Hills, whose soul rises against man's immortal cruelty and injustice to woman.

Playing opposite to Miss Vidor is dainty little Madge Bellamy, the newest star in the motion picture firmament. Miss Bellamy was until recently one of the most popular actresses on the New York stage. She takes the part of Nan, the loyal, abused girl-wife.

Theodore Roberts, masterful interpreter of character roles, takes the part of dour and grim Oliver Beresford, pillar of the church, and bigoted advocate of the immemorial, man-made law "Men and their souls." Lloyd Hughes gives a splendid characterization of David Beresford. Tully Marshall is in his element portraying the role of the vicious "red-jobs" man.

The part of gentle, self-effacing Mrs. Beresford is interpreted with great fidelity and truth by Gertrude Clair.

Vernon Dent makes an excellent Joe Hurd.

As Wyndham Gray, Edward Martindel is a typical, nonchalant man of the world.

Charles Merdeth is a suave type of the wealthy New Yorker, who falls in love with Judith in the course of her work among the poor of the metropolis.

Nathalie Brundage is a dignified patron—a great lady of New York society.

Four-year-old Muriel Dana makes splendid "little boy," as pathetic David Junior, and Eugene Hoffman is a chubby, delightful little thing in the part of the baby.

BIDS ARE OPENED

Bids were opened yesterday for the purpose Sunday School building to be erected on the site of the present parsonage. It is understood that six bids were offered and that J. H. Gorman's was the lowest. No contract was awarded, however, at that time.

Miss Hazel Wink Penn will return to Danville this evening after a visit to Louisville, Ky., and Richmond, Va.
